

Japan Credit Rating Agency, Ltd. (JCR) announces the following credit rating.

The Yamagata Bank, Ltd. (security code: 8344)

<Rating Change>

Long-term Issuer Rating: from A+ to A

Outlook: from Negative to Stable

Rationale

- (1) The Yamagata Bank, Ltd. (the "Bank") is a regional bank headquartered in Yamagata City, Yamagata Prefecture with a fund volume of 2.8 trillion yen. With the market share of around 35% for deposits (excluding Japan Post Bank) and loans in the prefecture, it has a strong local presence as the leading bank. Core capital level, which previously underpinned the rating, has declined and will probably take time to turn around. Market risks have also increased due to aggressive securities investment over the past couple years. Earnings capacity, which needs to be improved, is in fact weakening and will remain at the low level for the time being, even with its recovery JCR assumes taken into account. Based on the above, JCR downgraded the Company's rating by one notch.
- (2) Core net business income (excluding gains/losses on cancellation of investment trusts, etc.) fell for two years in a row in the fiscal year ended March 2024 (FY2023) to 5.0 billion yen, and, with ROA based on this income standing at around 0.15%, earnings capacity measured by the profit level and profitability indicators is low. Looking ahead, JCR assumes that income from securities investment will improve as foreign currency-denominated bonds, which previously were dragging down profits, are decreasing gradually, pushing up yields on reinvestment in yen-denominated bonds. Interest on loans is expected to increase going forward with growth in the outstanding balance of SME lending and housing loans, as well as structured loans, non-recourse real estate loans, etc. Core net business income, which has declined over the past few years, is now showing signs of recovery.
- (3) The quality of loan assets is favorable. Non-performing loans ratio under the Financial Reconstruction Act, standing at 1.0% as of March 31, 2024, is low, even in consideration of the high proportion of loans to local public bodies. The ratio of categorized assets is extremely low, with only a small number of assets requiring caution relative to total credit. Coverage is sufficient thanks in part to the adoption of a conservative allowance method. JCR assumes that credit costs will remain low into the future.
- (4) Risk exposure in the market division is large. Securities-to-deposit ratio is high, standing at around 35%, and, as the Bank invests in emerging market bonds, credit assets, overseas stocks and other assets through investment trusts, the amount invested is large relative to capital. The amount committed to low-liquidity assets, including private debt, is also increasing. For available-for-sale securities as a whole, there are valuation losses, especially on foreign currency-denominated bonds, foreign bond investment trusts, etc. Under the long-term management plan, the Bank intends to reduce negative spreads and low-earning assets while increasing the balance of yen-denominated bonds and equity assets. JCR will closely watch the impact of asset replacement on the earnings and finances and also whether the Bank can control market risks appropriately.
- (5) The ratio of core capital JCR assesses as essential, which is adjusted for valuation losses on available-for-sale securities, etc., stood at around 9% as of March 31, 2024, declining to the average level for regional banks in JCR's A rating category; even on an unadjusted basis, it fell to 10.4%. Factors like the slower accumulation of retained earnings than the expansion of risk assets are pushing down the capital level, reducing the Bank's previous competitiveness. As risk assets are expected to expand with growth in investments and loans, the capital level is hardly likely to improve even in the future.

The Main Assumptions and Principles used in Constructing the Procedures and Methodologies used to Determine the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(C) of Rule 17g-7

- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, to be applied to assess the likelihood of a given debt payment in light of its issuer's condition and business environment, etc. in the relevant future. There is certain limitation, however, in the time horizon that the rating foresees.
- The credit rating methodology assumes, in principle, that the factors posted in the below are particularly important for such likelihood to be determined, and that the rating determination is made by evaluating each of them not only quantitatively but also employing qualitative analyses.

A) Business Bases

The likelihood of a given debt payment is highly conditional to its issuer's business bases - how they can be maintained/ expanded into the future and thereby secure earnings and cash flows in adequacy and in a sustainable way.

B) Financial Grounds and Asset Quality

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the degree of the issuer's indebtedness and loss absorption capacity in terms of equity capital. Also notable is that a financial institution might see a significant loss of financial grounds as a result of changes in value of the assets under its possession.

C) Liquidity Positions

The likelihood of debt payment is highly dependent on the adequacy of the issuer's cash and other sources of repayment (liquidity positions).

D) Related Parties' Status and Stance of Support/ Assistance for the Issuer

The likelihood of debt payment is affected one way or the other by the issuer's related parties such as parent company, subsidiary, guarantor, and the government of the issuer's business domicile, etc. - by their own conditions and/ or position of support/ assistance for the issuer.

E) Order of Seniority in Debt Payment

The likelihood of debt payment can be different between given debts of the same issuer. The likelihood of debt payment for an individual debt is dependent on the issuer's discretion, and/ or its rank relative to other debts of the same issuer in the order of seniority in principal/ interest payment which is determined by design as financial product or by laws, etc.

4 The Potential Limitations of the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(D) of Rule 17g-7

- The credit rating herewith presented by JCR is its summary opinion with regard to the likelihood of given debt payment and hence not necessarily a perfect representation of such likelihood. The credit rating is not intended to estimate the probability of default or the loss on given default, either.
- The objective of the credit rating herewith presented does not include any concerns other than the likelihood of debt payment, such as risks of price changes, market liquidity, etc.
- The credit rating herewith presented is necessary to be reviewed along with possible changes of the issuer of rated objects in its business performance and/ or circumstances which include regulatory environment, and hence subject to possible alteration.

5 Information on the Uncertainty of the Credit Rating as Required by Paragraph (a)(1)(ii)(E) of Rule 17g-7

The credit rating is subject to alteration if there is improvement or deterioration of the issuer's business bases, since its revenue, etc. may improve or deteriorate by the change in its business management policies, clients' preferences, competitive situation, or a technological innovation. The resultant alteration of the credit rating is usually by a notch, with possibility of a few notches if and when the change in the business bases is large.

B) Financial Grounds and Asset Quality

The credit rating is subject to alteration if the issuer increases/ decreases its debt/ capital or vice versa and thereby makes its individual debt payment liability less or more bearable and its loss absorption capacity into the future decreased or increased. Also, the changes in the quality of asset under the issuer's holding may affect the credit rating, since such changes could raise or lower the likelihood of future loss of the issuer's financial grounds. The resultant alteration of the credit rating is usually by a notch, with possibility of a few notches if and when the change in the financial grounds and/ or asset quality is large.

C) Liquidity Positions

The credit rating is subject to alteration if there is a change in the issuer's financial management policy or in the relations with fund procurement sources and the change thereby makes its liquidity positions improve or deteriorate. The resultant alteration of the credit rating is usually by a notch, with possibility of a few notches if and when the change is large.

D) Related Parties' Status and Stance of Support/ Assistance for the Issuer

The credit rating is subject to alteration if there is a change in the issuer's parent company or subsidiary, guarantor or other provider of credit enhancement, or the government of the issuer's business domicile, or other related parties' own conditions and/ or position of support/ assistance for the issuer, and the change thereby makes its business bases, financial grounds and/ or liquidity positions improve or deteriorate, and/ or making the effectiveness of guarantee and other credit enhancement improve or deteriorate. The resultant alteration of the credit rating is usually a notch, with possibility of a few notches if and when the change is large.

E) Order of Seniority in Debt Payment and Non-Payment Forgiven by Contract

The credit rating is subject to alteration if there is a change in the rated debt's status in the order of seniority relative to other debts caused by the improvement/ deterioration of the issuer's financial condition. The resultant alteration of the credit rating is usually a notch, with possibility of a few notches if and when the change is large. Also, in case of the financial products for which non-payment of interest/ principal is contractually permissible, the credit rating is subject to alteration if and when the likelihood of such non-payment is projected to increase or decrease. The resultant alteration of the credit rating could be by a notch but often as much as a few notches.

F) Rise and Fall in General Economy and Markets

The credit rating is subject to alteration if there is a rise/ fall in the general economy and/ or the markets inducing the issuer's revenues/ expenses to increase/ decrease and vice versa, etc. The resultant alteration of the credit rating is usually by a notch, with possibility of a few notches if and when the change is exceptionally large.

G) Various Events

The credit rating is subject to alteration on occurrence of various events, such as change in the issuer's major shareholders, M&A and other organizational change, accident, violation of the law, litigation, legal/ regulatory change, natural disaster, etc., which are unforeseeable at the time when the credit rating is determined, causing a significant change on the issuer's business bases, financial grounds, etc. The resultant alteration of the credit rating could be by a notch but more often than not as much as a few notches.
